

Take a moment to reflect, as a group, on your teamwork during Project 2. What worked well? What did not work well? What could you do differently for Project 3?

For the most part, our team prefers to keep the exact same team contract. For overview, things didn't go as planned for some tasks assigned, but that's expected. We communicated and sorted out the problem, including a better plan to divide tasks for the future.

As in Team Contract for Project 2, a gentle reminder is indeed enough. In the case when a member contributes not as much as other members, that'll be reflected in the process (for example by looking at codes, commits, etc) for everyone to see.

